Making the Ark
Below is an initial high-poly concept of the Ark. I wanted to go for a ship that would have a unique profile but would also look like it something that could be constructed in phases by the civilization building it. The civilian city in the back was always part of the design but later became part of gameplay. The idea is that a civilization would want to preserve their culture as they travel light years to find a new home.

The Bridge
The bridge is a separate group meshes that exist inside of the large ship mesh. Once the player hits the camera key, we change to a different camera show the bridge and hide the ship mesh, so we don't have to calculate it anymore.
